INTRODUCTION

This collection includes material created and collected by Henry George Clemons Armitage (1921-2012). The collection reflects his activities as an auctioneer, his war service and his general interest in Tasmanian history, particularly that relating to Launceston. A smaller amount relates to his father Henry Alfred Armitage (1893-1975).

Henry Alfred Armitage was born in Launceston in 1893 to Alfred Armitage and Emily May Keene. Henry was employed at Peters Bros. Foundry, Launceston. After being retrenched from the foundry, he developed a market garden in Charles Street, returning later to work at the foundry.

Henry enlisted with the Australian Imperial Force in 1915, serving four years. He was awarded the Military Medal, receiving a commendation on his gallantry near Mouquet Farm, France in September 1916. He also served in the Citizen Forces, being discharged on 30 June 1920 on the termination of engagement.

Henry married Ivy Gladys Swift in 1920. He died in 1975. Ivy died five years later on 12 July 1980. They had three children – Henry, Elaine and Geoffrey.

Henry George Clemons Armitage was born in Launceston on 24 May 1921 and spent his childhood at 26 Balfour Street, Launceston, and attended Charles Street Primary School and the Launceston Technical College. He started work as a 14 year old office boy and auction assistant at Alfred Harrap and Son in Cameron Street, Launceston. After nine years with Harraps Henry joined Herd & Co in York Street, which later became Farmers and Graziers. In 1965, while working for Farmers and Graziers, he attended Joel's Coles Australiana Book sale in Melbourne, acting for Lord Talbot de Malahide. He noted that he was "probably the youngest buyer at the sale".

Henry served as a signalman in the Citizen Military Forces from 1941 to 1942, and the Australian Imperial Force from 1942 to 1946. He married Jessie Ailene Perkins on 1 November 1947 in Launceston. Following her death in 1981, Henry married Dawn Bailey (nee Heyward, c1923-2005) in 1985.

In 1972 Henry opened his own auction rooms Armitage Auctions in Canal Street, Launceston. His first auction was conducted on 9 February 1972, assisted by Mr Rex Howard as auctioneer. Armitage Auctions specialised in sales of antique furniture, art, books, coins, general furniture, industrial machinery and equipment, sales of behalf of the state government, clearing sales, bankrupt estates, new clothing and all types of valuations.

The business was sold in June 1987 to Bushby and Bell Auctioneers, who continued trading as Armitage Auctions.

During his years as an auctioneer, significant sales with which Henry was involved included the Brisbane Hotel sale, Criterion Hotel sale, Lanes Grand Hotel sale, the Berry sale 1960, Wanstead 1987, Longford House 1988, Fitzpatrick's Inn 1990, Judy and Alan Edwards 1992, Alfred White 1993.

One of the most notable prices realised during his career was for the sale of an oil painting by William Hartnett. It sold at auction in Launceston in 1969 for $310, and was later re sold for more than $60,000 in New York.

Henry wrote auction catalogues for 27 years from 1960-1987. In retirement he acted as a consultant to both Armitage and Tullochs Auctions, working on book auctions, in particular for that of Dr Geraldine Archer, up to 1995.

In September 1982 Henry was one of 16 first division winners in Tattsлото. In 1983 he travelled overseas.

Henry died in Launceston in December 2012. It was through the course of his life in Northern Tasmania and his 30 years active work as an auctioneer that his interest in Tasmanian history developed. Outside his professional life he was a keen bowler and gardener.

His first donation to the QVMAG was in 1965 – a Bass Strait lighthouse keepers letter book. Later donations included a small library of decorative arts and Australian history books, examples of locally made blackwood furniture, family war medals, and a collection of domestic items and souvenirs made by R Shott & Son, all of which are held in other museum departments.

Most of the contents of this collection were donated to the Queen Victoria Museum and Art Gallery in 2011 and 2013. Henry Armitage was also responsible for initiating donations from Dr G Archer, Miss A Ball, the Newton and Kenworthy families.
